A MESSAGE TO A KING.

In the early part of the reign of Alexander I., Bible reading and habits of piety and devotion were held in contempt among the upper classes in Russia, and when Prince Galitzin, in utter ignorance of religion, became a magister in the church by imperial appointment, he was obliged to purchase a Bible secretly, that he might acquaint himself with the first principles of Christianity.

His stolen study of the Holy Book soon influenced the character and manners of the once haughty noble, so that all who dared to do so sneered at him.

In course of time Napoleon invaded Russia, and all St. Petersburg prepared either to fight or flee. Galitzin alone remained unmoved. His palace was undergoing extensive repairs, and he continued to superintend them as composedly as if his country was in the midst of the profoundest peace.

The Czar was astonished at the apparent unconcern of his favorite prince, and before putting himself at the head of his armies he called on him, half fearing for the soundness of Galitzin's patriotism.

"What does it mean," said he, "that you go on building when every one else prepares to flee?"

"The Lord is my defence, sire," answered Galitzin; "I am as safe here as anywhere."
Alexander demanded to know where he had found this new confidence, and the prince showed him his Bible. Strange as it may seem, it was the first Bible the Czar had ever seen.

The first place which he opened was at the 91st Psalm: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty," etc., and Galitzin read to him the whole of that sweet, grand Scripture.

Profoundly impressed, the Czar repaired to the cathedral for public worship, preparatory to departing on his campaign. The priest who conducted the service, by a singular coincidence chose the 91st Psalm to read: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

"Did Galitzin tell you to select that?" said Alexander.

"I have not seen Galitzin," said the priest. "I only prayed the Lord to be my guide in the choice."

The Czar went a day's march with his army, and in the evening feeling anxious and serious, he ordered his chaplain to read to him in his tent. The chaplain began to read, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

"Hold!" cried Alexander; "did Galitzin tell you to read that to me?"

"Assuredly not, sire," said the chaplain, "I asked God to direct me to a passage, and then I felt constrained to select this psalm."

From that time Alexander secretly got access to a Bible every day, and read it with wonder and delight. And when Divine Providence scattered the great army of Napoleon, and drove it out of Russia with a loss of 450,000 men, the Czar returned to his capital, borrowed Galitzin's Bible, and applied himself eagerly to the study of its precious pages, until the Holy Spirit taught him to make it the rule of his life.

Some years afterward, two missionaries who were preaching and teaching the Scripture in St. Petersburg learned this story from the mouth of Prince Galitzin, and heard the Czar himself confirm it, during an impressive and memorable interview which he granted them at the palace. One of those missionaries was Stephen Grellet, a Quaker, who recorded the facts in his journal.—Youth's Companion.

MUMMIES AS A FERTILIZER.—(London Times Letter).—Fancy mummy fattened on ancient Egyptians! The other day, at Sakhar, I saw nine camels pacing down from the mummy pits to the bank of the river, laden with nets, in which were mummies, and other bony bits of the human form, some two hundred weight in each net on each side of the camel. Among the pits there were people busy engaged in searching out, sifting and sorting the bones which almost crust the ground. On inquiry, I learned that the cargoes with which the camels were laden would be sent down to Alexandria, and thence be shipped to English manure manufacturers. They make excellent manure, I am told, particularly for Sweden and other turnips. The trade is brisk, and has been going on for years, and may go on for many more. It is a strange fact to preserve one's skeletons for thousands of years in order that there may be fine southwicks and chevrons in a distant land! But Egypt is always a place of wonders.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, in discussing the hay fever, says that he has seen the "quinine douche" recommended by Appleton's Journal used to the great relief of the sufferer. This is what Appleton's Journal said about it: "A valuable contribution to the discussion on the germ-theory of disease is made by Prof. Binz, of Bonn. On investigation into the nature and true cause of the hay fever, he discovered vegetable organisms in the nasal secretions, which were never present save during an attack of the disease. By using a neutral solution of sulphate of quinine, applied with a nasal douche, the animalcules were completely destroyed. In addition to the scientific value of this fact, the simplicity of the remedy will commend it to those who are afflicted with this annoying complaint."

The controversy which has lately been going on in England with regard to the right of a Wesleyan minister to call himself "reverend" on the tombstone of his child in the parish churchyard, his right being denied by the established church authorities, has received a denunciation, and pathetically asks, "If Wesleyan teachers are to be designated as reverend in our church yards and churches, where are we to stop?"

A negro in Carroll county, Tenn., recently boasted that he was going to marry or kill a certain white girl whose father was a Radical. The father thrashed him; the negro waylaid the father to murder him; was caught and put in jail. But the next morning the negro was buried with appropriate honors.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Its acts mildly, effectively, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every respect, and has been used for FORTY YEARS, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.
